Historical and Topographical Sketch.

THE original object in founding these Institutions was the rearing up of Ministers of the Gospel in the midst of the habits and circumstances, and with all the facilities of economy peculiar to the western country, with especial reference to western wants. The first incorporation, therefore, was under the name of the "Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Ohio"; and in that character, the Institution was opened for elementary instruction, at Worthington, near Columbus, in 1825.

Subsequently, as pupils in elementary science and the classics increased, an act of the Legislature was obtained, by which the President and Professors were constituted the Faculty of a College, by the name of Kenyon College; and the Institution, thus modified and enlarged, was transferred from Worthington to Gambier, its present site. The removal was effected in June, 1828.

In this arrangement, however, the original object of the Institution was not changed. Its aim was still to furnish, on the most economical plan, such an education as is required in a thorough preparation for the ministry, and a College course was necessary for this purpose. It was believed—and the belief has been fully realized—that the two departments would mutually aid and promote each other.

The operations of the Institution, as a Seminary of learning, for some years after its transfer to Gambier, as well as at Worthington before, were—under the circumstances of its organization—almost exclusively academic; and in this department, therefore, were instituted the first Professorships. That of Latin and Greek, the first in order, was filled as early as the year 1825; that of Intellectual and Moral Philosophy in 1829; Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, and Chemistry, in 1830; Logic and Rhetoric in 1834; Mathematics, and Civil Engineering, separate.

from Natural Philosophy and Chemistry, in 1854; and English Literature and History in 1856.

In the Theological Department, the first Professorship, that of Systematic Divinity, was filled in 1830; Ecclesiastical Polity, Pastoral Divinity, and Sacred Literature, in 1833; Ecclesiastical History in 1837; and Pastoral Theology, separately, in 1860.

These appointments and dates show the rise and progress of the Institution, under its venerable founder and his successors in office.

The interior government of the entire Institution was at first, vested in one joint Faculty, composed of the Professors in Arts and Theology, by whom degrees were conferred and other acts performed for both departments. A further act of the Legislature was obtained in 1839, under which, in 1840, the mixed Faculty was resolved into two—one of Theology and one of Arts—by whom the two Schools have since been administered separately.

Under this system, degrees in Arts and Academic degrees generally, are conferred by the Faculty of Arts, acting under the name of "The President and Professors of Kenyon College," and degrees in Divinity, by the Theological Faculty, under the name of "The President and Professors of the Theological Seminary of the Diocese of Ohio."

There has also been constituted, as auxiliary to the College, a Preparatory School. The entire Institution now consists of three distinct Schools:—the Theological Seminary, Kenyon College, and the Grammar School.

The tract upon which these Institutions are located, was originally purchased for the present object, by Bishop Chase, in the year 1826, from William Hogg, Esq., of Brownsville, Pa.

The situation is admirable in point of natural beauty, healthiness, and convenience of access; and is in every respect well adapted to the purpose of a Seminary of Learning on the largest and most liberal scale. It has an easy communication, by Railroad, with Cleveland and Sandusky on the north, and with Columbus and Cincinnati on the south.

The particular site of the College and other buildings is an elevated ridge or headland jutting out from the general slope of the hills on the north side of the valley of the Kokosing River. The table land at the top of this ridge, from one to five hundred yards wide, affords an irregular area, somewhat undulating, but generally elevated about 150 feet above the stream. This is occupied by the village of Gambier, with the buildings of the different Institutions commodiously and tastefully disposed around it.

On a knoll somewhat elevated above the plat of the village, and about a quarter of a mile north, is the beautiful building of BEXLEY HALL, erected for the exclusive use of the Theological Seminary. It was commenced in 1841, and not fully completed until 1859. It contains the Library of the Institution, about seven thousand volumes, and furnishes rooms, each with separate bed-rooms, sufficient to accommodate 34 students.

About 500 yards in the opposite direction, and near the southernmost point of the plateau, stands the more massive and venerable edifice of KENYON COLLEGE, fronting north, and overlooking the valley of the Kokosing, to the distance of several miles in all directions. This building is of plain stone, 190 feet long, and four stories high, including the basement; with battlements, pinnacles, belfry, and a spire 117 feet high. It contains upwards of fifty rooms for students; also the Libraries of the Philomathesian and Nu Pi Kappa Societies, between four and five thousand volumes in each.

About 200 yards north, and a little west, is ROSSE HALL (formerly Rosse Chapel), a substantial stone building, in Ionic Architecture. The foundations of this building were laid by Bishop Chase, and the walls laid to the floor; the present building was erected, with some variations from the original plan, in 1836, and was occupied as the parish Church of Harcourt Parish till May, 1871. It is used on Commencement and other occasions, and is capable of accommodating nearly 1000 persons.

About midway between Kenyon College and Rosse Hall, and about 60 yards east of the latter building, fronting the west, stands ASCENSION HALL, erected in 1860, 171 feet long and four stories high, including the basement. The walls throughout are of a fine light-colored free stone—laid in courses with rough undressed face. The appearance of the building is imposing, and equal to any in the land erected for a similar purpose. It contains two spacious and elaborately finished Halls for the use of the College Societies—six Recitation and Lecture Rooms, the Library of Kenyon College, and 26 rooms for students. The Tower is fitted up for an Observatory, and contains an Equatorial and a Transit Telescope.

Directly north of Ascension, and about fifty yards from the village street, stands the CHURCH OF THE HOLY SPIRIT, which was finished in 1871. This most beautiful piece of architecture of all the buildings in Gambier, was the gift of members of Ascension' Parish, New York City, and of their former Rector, Bishop Bedell.

To the north and east of the village, and some distance from the main street, environed by trees, and commanding an extensive and beautiful prospect of the Valley of the Kokosing, stands MILNOR HALL, built for the use of the Preparatory School. This is a plain structure of brick, the main building four stories high.

All of the above buildings, except Bexley and Milnor Halls, are in the College Park, an inclosure of about fifty acres, well shaded with forest trees. Here are also six dwelling-houses for the use of the Professors in Kenyon.

The election of Trustees of the Institutions is regulated by a Constitution which was adopted in 1824 by the Diocesan Convention, and was recognized in the Act of Incorporation. Some changes have been made in the original constitution in the manner provided in the instrument. The Bishop of the Diocese has always been ex officio a member, and President of the Board; also since 1860, the Assistant Bishop has been an ex officio member. The remaining members have been elected by the Diocesan Conventions, for terms of three years, in equal numbers from the clergy and laity. The number of elected Trustees, at first, was eight; in 1828, it was increased to twelve; in 1831, to sixteen; but in 1834, it was reduced to twelve, which number has remained.

By a change in the Constitution which takes effect at the meeting of the Diocesan Convention in May, 1873, the Board of Trustees is to consist of the Bishops of all Dioceses which may embrace territory now within the limits of the Diocese of Ohio; the Assistant Bishop, if there be one, of the Diocese in which the Seminary is situated; the President of Kenyon College; four clerical and four lay trustees, whose successors shall be chosen by the Board of Trustees, for terms of ten years; three clerical and three lay trustees, whose successors shall be elected by Diocesan Conventions, for terms of three years; and two clerical and two lay trustees to be chosen by the alumni, who also are to choose the successors of these four, for terms of four years.

NOTE OF EXPLANATION.

— O —

The previous Triennial Catalogues gave nothing more than the names of the Graduates. Nine such have been published, always in connection with the Annual Catalogue. The last was in 1861. Under these circumstances there are probably some errors, and there are certainly many omissions, in the present publication. A copy is sent to every Alumnus of either school, whose post-office address could be discovered. Every reader who detects any imperfection, is requested to send to the President of Kenyon College any information which may help to improve a future edition.

Many of the Alumni have sent brief statements of the principal incidents of their personal history. These interesting letters are carefully preserved.

In the following list of the Alumni of Kenyon, are given:

1. The names in full.
2. The post-office address of those now living.
3. Occupations.
4. Collegiate degrees, with the date, and the name of the school when the degree is not from Kenyon or from Bexley.
5. Offices under the National or State Governments, and other important offices.
6. Time and place of decease of those who are dead.

A separate list is given of those Students who were in the service of the United States during the late war. The military histories are, therefore, omitted in the lists of Graduates, but the names are indicated by the letters "R. H."
